

5th Winchester Conference on Trust, Risk, Information and the Law

Public Law, Politics and the Constitution: A new battleground between the Law and Technology?

Holiday Inn, Winchester, Wednesday 25 April 2018

#TRILCon18

MORNING SESSIONS

0845 - 0915	0915-0925	0925-1010	1015-1115	1115-1130	1130-1230	1230 - 1315
Registration & Refreshments	Welcome & opening remarks Room: Hampshire 1 Professor Liz Stuart First Deputy Vice-Chancellor, University of Winchester	Keynote Address Chief Constable Michael Barton, Durham Constabulary Room: Hampshire 1 Chair: Marion Oswald Head of the Centre for Information Rights, University of Winchester	Breakout 1: 2 streams Stream 1A: Algorithmic tools in policing Room: Hampshire 1 Chair: Timandra Harkness, Visiting Fellow, University of Winchester Paper 1: Chief Superintendent David Powell, Hampshire Constabulary Paper 2: Accelerated inscrutability: Algorithmic risk assessment, contestation, and legal experimentation, Adam Harkens, Queens University Belfast Paper 3: The legalities of spent convictions as points of data in predictive or algorithmic risk assessments, Jamie Grace, Sheffield Hallam University	Break	Breakout 2: 2 streams Stream 2A: Data, surveillance and criminal justice Room: Hampshire 1 Chair: Marion Oswald, University of Winchester Paper 1: The Transparent Citizen on Trial: Should an accused person's online and digital activities, or lack of them, count against them? Timandra Harkness, Scarlett Bradley, Poppy Watson, Marion Oswald, University of Winchester Paper 2: Is downloading a VPN an offence? The case for reforming the Computer Misuse Act in the post-Snowden era, Audrey Guinchard, University of Essex Paper 3: Processing of personal data by law enforcement: Notification requirements and effective remedies under the Investigatory Powers Act, Allison M. Holmes, University of Kent	Lunch
			Stream 1B: Technology, human rights and human control Room: Emperor Suite Chair: Bea Myers, University of Winchester Paper 1: Who is the guarantor of human rights online? María Rún Bjarnadóttir, University of Sussex		Stream 2B: Privacy and datafication in theory and practice Room: Emperor Suite Chair: Professor David Chalk, University of Winchester Paper 1: Do we need a right to have high cholesterol? John Rumbold, Nottingham Trent University

			Paper 2: Lethal Autonomous Weapons – Key characteristics and the legal constraints on their use of force in armed conflict, Mikolaj Firlej, University of Oxford Paper 3: The interplay between the NIS Directive and the GDPR in a cybersecurity threat landscape, Mark Cole and Sandra Schmitz-Berndt, University of Luxembourg	Paper 2: Is Privacy Law about Privacy? John Northam, University of Winchester Paper 3: the law as (mere) user: affordance and the mediation of law by technological artefacts, Laurence Diver, University of Edinburgh
--	--	--	---	--	--

5th Winchester Conference on Trust, Risk, Information and the Law

Public Law, Politics and the Constitution: A new battleground between the Law and Technology?

Holiday Inn, Winchester, Wednesday 25 April 2018

#TRILCon18

AFTERNOON SESSIONS (CELEBRATING THE LAUNCH OF THE CENTRE FOR PARLIAMENT AND PUBLIC LAW)

1315-1400	1405 – 1505	1505-1520	1520-1620	1625-1700	1700
Keynote Address	Breakout 3: 2 streams	Break	Breakout 4: 2 streams	Plenary address	Closing remarks
Jamie Bartlett, Director of the Centre for the Analysis of Social Media for Demos in conjunction with the University of Sussex Room: Hampshire 1 Chair: Craig Prescott, Head of the Centre for Parliament and Public Law, University of Winchester	Stream 3A: Fake News I Room: Hampshire 1 Chair: Professor Chris Turner, University of Winchester Paper 1: Constitutional protection of free speech and fake news prosecution in Malaysia: The challenges ahead, Jaspal Kaur Sadhu Singh, HELP University, Kuala Lumpur Paper 2: Assessing the ability to critically analyse fake news: a human rights issue? Bethanie Hellawell, Sheffield Hallam University Paper 3: The Human Rights of Victims of Hate Crime: Problems of ‘Fake News’ and Victimisation through Social Media, Francesca Devlin Johnson, Sheffield Hallam University		Stream 4A: Fake News II Room: Hampshire 1 Chair: Julian Dobson, University of Winchester Paper 1: A double-edged slice of pizza: Who controls the narrative of fake news? Vicky Thirlaway, Sheffield Hallam University Paper 2: Big Data, Small Law: How gaps in regulation are affecting political campaigning methods, Bethany Shiner, Middlesex University Paper 3: Verification of facts in the era of fake news: A panacea or Pandora’s Box? Re-establishing trust in democracy, Alan S. Reid, Sheffield Hallam University	Nick Dodd, Data Use and Ethics, Digital and Tech Policy Directorate, Department of Culture, Media & Sport Room: Hampshire 1 Chair: Craig Prescott, Head of the Centre for Parliament and Public Law, University of Winchester
	Stream 3B: Informational challenges and regulatory solutions Room: Emperor Suite Chair: Emma Nottingham, University of Winchester Paper 1: A risk-based approach towards infringement prevention on the internet: adopting the anti-money laundering framework to online platforms, Carsten Ullrich, University of Luxembourg		Stream 4B: The Dark Web, Open data, information access and informational privacy Room: Emperor Suite Chair: Helen Ryan, University of Winchester Paper 1: Open Metadata: a way to reconcile the use of anonymisation techniques and confidentiality agreements with the open data movement? Henry Pearce, University of Hertfordshire

	Paper 2: Regulating disruptive technology and information interests in the arena of reproductive tests, Jeffrey Wale, Bournemouth University Paper 3: Protecting the privacy of Generation Tagged – a regulatory solution, Helen Ryan, University of Winchester		Paper 2: Protecting the privacy of library users, Paul Pedley, City, University of London Paper 3: Legal and ethical challenges in doing research in security domain into the Dark Web, Maura Conway, Dublin City University, Ruth Fee, Ulster University, Esther McGuinness, Ulster University and Monica Cappelletti, Dublin City University
--	---	--	--	--	--

Programme subject to change